Cisco Online Exams Frequently Asked Questions

What Cisco Exams are available online?

A complete list of Cisco online exams is posted on the Pearson VUE website at www.pearsonvue.com/cisco/online.

How do I register for a Cisco online exam?

When you are ready to take your exam, go to www.pearsonvue.com/cisco/online, and follow instructions under "Register for an Exam". If you have not tested with Cisco before, you will need to create an account before proceeding. If you have previously tested with Cisco and have a Cisco Certification ID (CSCO ID), you can use that ID to look up your username and PIN for entering the exam site.

How will I receive the results from my online exam?

Your exam results will be presented on screen at the completion of your exam. Your official results will be posted to the Cisco Certifications website www.cisco.com/go/certifications/login.

I have forgotten my username and PIN. What should I do?

If you have forgotten your username and PIN for the Internet-Based Testing Site, please contact Pearson VUE at www.pearsonvue.com/contact/ for this to be resent to you. Do not create a new record as this will result in you holding two CSCO IDs and your results may not be recognized.

How do I register for a Smart Care exam?

If you have been given a Smart Care access code, then you must enter this when creating an account with TesTrac. For candidates who have a CSCO ID, please enter your Smart Care access code when you look up your ID and PIN on the TesTrac website.

For new candidates, your Smart Care access code must be entered when you create an account. If you do not enter your Smart Care access code at that time, please contact Pearson VUE with your access code, and the exams will be assigned to you.

Who delivers the IBT exam?

How long do I have to take my exam?

I lost my connection during my exam. What do I do?

If you have connectivity issues or hardware issues you will be able to resume your exam at the point you lost connection. Simply log back in to www.testrac.com/pvuecisco, enter your username and PIN, and resume your exam.
